The Journal of Child and Adolescent Trauma announces a forthcoming Special Issue on Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation of Children and Adolescents. Manuscripts that address a wide variety of topics involving the commercial sexual exploitation and sex trafficking of children and adolescents will be considered for this Special Issue. All submissions will undergo peer-review. Of particular interest are original qualitative or quantitative research articles, manuscripts originating from secondary analyses of existing data sets, formative and program evaluation of community-participatory research and implementation science research, and review articles that address topics such as (but not limited to):

- Social determinants and risk factors for sexual exploitation and trafficking
- Physical, mental, and sexual health sequelae; characteristics of survivors; long-term outcomes of commercial sexual exploitation and sex trafficking
- Evaluation of effectiveness of prevention and intervention programs
- Identification of and screening tools for victims during mental health, medical, and social service provision; trauma informed assessments
- Information on commercial sexual exploitation and sex trafficking of boys; male victims and survivors
- Challenges of conducting research and providing services for victims and survivors of commercial sexual exploitation and sex trafficking: ethical, legal, and practical issues
- Aftercare, re-integration, mental health, and post-trafficking services for survivors
- Post-traumatic psychological growth and resilience among survivors
- Promising practices, effective treatment and support services for survivors of commercial sexual exploitation and sex trafficking
