Special Issue Call for Papers: Parents, Primary Caregivers and Autism Spectrum Disorders

JOURNAL OF AUTISM AND DEVELOPMENTAL DISORDERS

Logan Hart, Yale University, USA; Roald Oien, Yale University, University of Tromsø, Norway; Anders Nordahl-Hansen, University of Oslo, Norway

This special issue of the Journal of Autism and Developmental Disorders (JADD) will focus on the parents and primary caregivers of persons with ASD. The issue offers an international forum for researchers to present current scientific developments in this area and those that closely relate to the following topics of interest for this special issue of JADD:

- Parent and primary caregiver perspectives or concerns (including but not limited to parental stress)
- Parent-child interaction
- Family and family processes
- Parent-mediated interventions and treatment protocols
- The use of parent reports, measurement issues, or evaluations of measures’ psychometric properties.
- Experiences of parents with ASD

The list of suggested topics is not exhaustive, and all papers, with the exception of literature reviews, are welcome. Submissions presenting original empirical research are encouraged.

Submission deadline for this special issue will be June 20, 2017, through JADD’s online Editorial Manager: http://www.editorialmanager.com/jadd/default.asp

When submitting, please designate article type, “SI: Parenting Children with ASD”. Submitted manuscripts should be prepared in accordance with JADD author guidelines for articles (www.springer.com/journal/10803) – see “Instruction for Authors” under the section “For Authors and Editors.” Manuscripts should also include a cover letter clarifying submission for the special issue, explaining relevance to this issue, and suggesting three referees. All manuscripts will undergo standard peer-review.

Please direct any questions about scientific content to Logan Hart (logan.hart@yale.edu), and questions regarding submission to (suganya.manikandan@springer.com).
