

CALL FOR PAPERS

Special Issue on “Sustainable Decision-Making in Production and Logistics”

Editors: Günter Fandel, Andreas Kleine and Andreas Dellnitz

Corporate decision-makers are focusing more and more on sustainable produced and transported goods to improve the company’s environmental footprint as well as protecting natural resources and, consequently, mitigating the impacts of climate change. In order to reach these goals progressively, respective cause-and-effect relationships between ecological, economic and/or social factors must be revealed and adequately incorporated in the decision-making process.

This is what the special issue is about, and hence we welcome high quality papers on quantitative approaches in production and logistics, combining economic-driven methods or procedures with ecological and/or social aspects.

Topics of particular interest include, but are not limited to:

- Sustainable Decision-Making and Decision Support Systems (DSS)
- Sustainable Energy Planning Systems
- Multi-criteria Decision-Making – focusing on Sustainability
- Production Planning with Respect to Emissions
- Energy Efficient Scheduling
- Sustainable (Electric) Vehicle Routing
- Sustainable Location Planning
- Sustainable Electricity Production and Consumption
- Measuring Corporate Sustainability Performance
